A good time was had by all

Once again, Bethel's community and civic organizations worked together to bring to life the town's mid-summer festival—Mollyockett Day.

And once again crowds flocked to the downtown to take part in the things that make a small town festival worthwhile: a parade up the main street, games, music, crafts, contests, and lots of good things to eat.

Among those groups who deserve a lot of praise for getting things organized—and getting things taken down again—were the town and sanitation crews, the Bethel Lions Club, the Bethel Rotary Club, the American Legion, the Bethel Area Health Center, the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce, Sunday River Ski Resort and The Bethel Inn. These groups had lots of help, as witness all the public and private entities that constructed floats for the parade.

It was a town—actually, an area-wide—undertaking, and it was well done.

Looking ahead to next year, trash on the Common is still a problem. This year dumpsters were provided to ease the deluge of garbage in the trash cans, but people still have to be assigned to empty the trash cans into the dumpsters. bfw

As I see it . . .

In support of the rule of law

The heated, microwave atmosphere in the Senate Caucus Room during the appearance of Lt. Col. Oliver North has dissipated. Now, the only flashes of heat come from the lighter Admiral John Pendexter uses to stoke up his ever-present pipe.

Instead, the facts according to Admiral Pendexter are cold and chilling.

In a level and unemotional voice, Pendexter has been telling those of us on the Iran-Contra investigative panels that he withheld information from the President, from Congress and from high-ranking policy-makers within the Administration about the most significant details of the operation.

In his soft-spoken, deliberate manner, the Admiral has described a circle of suspicion and secrecy so tight that the very institutions and individuals responsible for establishing and carrying out foreign policy were excluded from it.

Poindexter viewed the world through a lens so narrowly focused that he trusted no one, except North, because of the danger of leaks. Those excluded included the Congress of the United States, the Department of State, the Department of Defense, the National Security Council staff and, at times, the Central Intelligence Agency. The President was excluded for a different reason—to preserve his ability to deny knowledge of the operation.

Poindexter also asserted that the diversion of Iranian arms sale funds to the Contras was only a technicality, so it was not necessary to notify the President.

What the Admiral was describing was a decision to sell taxpayer financed weapons, to inflate the price by 300 to 400 percent and then to transfer the profits to a program that had been rejected by Congress. That could hardly be characterized as a technicality.

I'd also like to issue with Poindexter's fear of leaks. He and others within the Administration have created the perception that they cannot trust Congress with secret operations because lives are at stake. The fact is that the Administration has always come to Congress with information on covert operations. As vice chairman of the Intelligence Committee, I am regularly notified of life-threatening covert operations. And there have been no leaks. So the notion that somehow this Administration hasn't been able to trust Congress is simply false.

But this particular covert operation was different for a number of reasons, and I believe that was the reason for the secrecy. First, there was a law on the books that prohibited the sale of weapons to countries, like Iran, that support or sponsor terrorism.

And second, what distinguished this covert action was that the Administration was deeply divided within itself. The Secretary of State was opposed, the Secretary of Defense was opposed, the former National Security Adviser was opposed. I think it is fair to say that under these circumstances, the last thing the Administration wanted at that time was to risk coming to Congress to start a debate about the wisdom of a program that was being rather heatedly debated within itself.

While the tale of deception and distrust chronicled by these hearings is still unfolding, it is nonetheless appropriate to consider the job that lies ahead. We must re-establish some sort of mechanism of trust. Without it we have a gridlock—a paralyzed government.

Our job now is to put back into place those blocks that allow us to function as a democratic system, recognizing that

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

In the last two weeks, which has been a very painful and trying time for all of us who were close to Elisha Parsons, I just cannot understand why there are so many people that are so concerned with knowing all of the details of the accident.

I have heard so many untruths, one-sided stories, and even vicious lies about the accident. Can't people realize that accidents do happen and that the blame should not be placed on anybody?

Can't people understand that whose fault it was or was not is not nearly so important as the fact that a life was taken?—a life whose presence brought happiness, good times and life-long memories to so many of us.

I hope that this letter will make people realize that all the talk is unnecessary. What's done is done and can't be changed by petty talk, and talk is not helping family and friends overcome their loss. It's hurting them more. Deborah Wheeler

To the Editor:

Will the pure "no fooling-around" independent presidential hopeful please stand up?

With the process of illumination of the now-runners, there is a great chance for someone out there. Let's have a president who is not an actor, a liar, a womanizer—and who is not hungry for money. But one who has the wisdom of Solomon on foreign policy.

This is the chance of a lifetime. Let's show them across the seas that we are not all that bad. Gil Seeley

Old time Yankee law prevails in North Lovell

Two years ago, on July 20, 1985, Adolph B. Carreiro from Portsmouth, R.I., walked over—so court records disclose, as filed in sworn testimony and in affidavits submitted in Superior Court in South Paris—to the homestead of an old-line Lovell, Maine, family whose forebear, the late Theodore Arnhelter, first moved to that location in the latter part of the 19th century.

What happened next lay in dispute, according to court records inclusive of affidavits, complaints and counter-complaints, amended pleadings, motions, rulings, sworn testimony, and recorded hearings, all available for public inspection at the office of the court clerk, in Superior Court, South Paris.

Testimony of witnesses backing retired U.S. Navy Commander Marcus Arnhelter contended that Carreiro had come to the Arnhelter homestead yelling, screaming, and wholly hostile, demanding that the Arnhelters remove their vehicles from a portion of meadowland which Carreiro said was his, and also notifying the Arnhelters that he was going to unilaterally change the route of their right of way over the farmland he had recently bought from Mary Wilson.

According to testimony of Commander Arnhelter supported by evidence offered the court by two witnesses, Carreiro took a club and commenced assaulting Arnhelter with it, finally bashing the Commander's right foot with it. This alleged incident was the basis for a two-year court litigation commenced by Arnhelter against Carreiro, whose response in court was to deny his having committed assault and battery, and who then counter-sued Arnhelter for damages he stemmed from Arnhelter's wrongful traversing of his newly acquired property over routes which he, Carreiro, did not consent to, as he had advised by his attorney and real estate agent (among others) that he could change the right of way to any route most convenient to him.

Carreiro also claimed that Arnhelter had cut his own right foot on Carreiro's toes and stood there several minutes using what he described "as an old cop trick," an accusation which Arnhelter said was absurd because X-rays of Arnhelter's right ankle and right leg show over two dozen nails, pins, and plates in his right leg and ankle which establish his inability to maintain any kind of balance necessary to perform the act Carreiro claimed he had and which therefore may have caused him (Carreiro) to act in self defense.

Subpoenaed for trial was the U.S. Navy doctor who had treated Arnhelter's foot and taken X-rays of it within hours of the assault and battery complained of by Arnhelter. Additionally, a podiatrist was subpoenaed to testify as to his follow-up treatment of Arnhelter's "empurpled, bloated and swollen, gashed big toe on his right foot."

With a 42-man array of prospective jurors waiting to be empaneled, Carreiro consulted with his attorneys, Friedman & Babcock, of Portland, through John Carroll Broderick, Esq., and opted for a court-ordered settlement at the hands of Superior Court Justice Carl O. Bradford, then conducting the case as trial judge.

The court noted that under Maine law, established rights of way could not be unilaterally changed by new owners of the land involved, and that under Maine Law, centuries old common law established that blocks or parcels of land used continuously, openly, exclusively, and in hostile fashion by one party, when such land by deed actually belonged to another party, could be then claimed by the adverse party and that same land then legally ceded to the hostile user. In other words, the Arnhelters in fact had a lawful claim to ownership of approximately half an acre of land on Carreiro's meadow, where they had for well over twenty years factually, since 1898) parked vehicles, planted a garden, picnicked and played softball.

The court then issued an order compelling Carreiro to deed over the land in dispute, to the Arnhelters. The court order also provided that should Marcus Arnhelter be sued by another party as a result of this settlement, wherein the right of way itself was agreed to by Arnhelter and not by way of unilateral

Site plan review

Board public hearing, other than a hearing on a specific development.

The draft plan is a culmination of a half-year's work on the part of a Planning Board subcommittee and the Planning Board itself, with input from a hired consultant, lawyers from the Maine Municipal Association, and the Board of Selectmen. The draft will have another public hearing July 29, at the West Bethel Union Church, after which the Planning Board will meet to decide which, if any, of the public comments should be incorporated into the draft before it is presented for a vote at the Aug. 23 Special Town Meeting.

Acting Planning Board Chairman Ginger Kelly said, in any case, the ordinance will be reviewed and fine-tuned by the board annually, if it does get voted into law.

One question on people's minds was how—if at all—does the site plan review ordinance differ from a zoning ordinance. John Todd wondered aloud if the draft ordinance doesn't, in fact, restrict a business such as a McDonald's from locating on a residential street of the village.

Bob Chadbourne pointed out that, although the ordinance does not divide the town into residential and commercial zones, the setback and parking requirements have much the same effect. In other words, on a typical village lot, it would be difficult to establish a McDonald's and still comply with the setback requirements or with the parking requirements.

Former Chairman Gray said, "The scope of the ordinance deals with use, not location [as would be the case in a zoning ordinance]." He noted, however, that the draft ordinance does distinguish between those areas of town that have municipal sewer and those that don't—effectively creating an in-town and suburban division.

Woodstock voters veto

Some of those at the meeting thought the town should look after the water needs of its residents. Fred Emerson, of North Pond, said most of the summer people get their water at the spring. And John Bayless said, "This spring is the only source of water we have for our house." His house is served by a well, he said, but the water has too much iron in it.

Margaret Hand offered him water from her well and said $25,000 seemed an outrageous price to pay for 1/2 acres of land, especially when all that was wanted was a few feet.

Paul Hillquist agreed, "I think $25,000 is expensive for a well," he said.

The great majority agreed that the town had no business getting into the water business, and the article was defeated.

The remainder of the articles on the warrant were passed, however. Considered the most important by many at the meeting was an article establishing a Planning Board for the town.

In the past, the town had such a board, but it was voted out of existence in 1978. That left only the state-mandated Shoreland Zoning Board, which deals only with shoreland matters. The remainder of the issues associated with granting permits for subdivisions and condominiums has been handled by the selectmen.

Selectman George Hooper said, "The selectmen don't have the time to handle all the developments." And that is why he thought it important to re-establish a Planning Board.

Nancy Willard saw another reason: "I think the Planning Board is overdue. We need someone to plan for the future, to determination by Carreiro, then Carreiro would have to indemnify Arnhelter for his costs in any further litigation.

Eight days later, Carreiro's attorneys filed a motion for a new trial. After hearing Carreiro's attorneys in open court, Justice Bradford listened to the arguments in opposition, from Commander Arnhelter. In his presentation, Arnhelter noted that in good faith, he had released his witnesses and that his doctor had since then transferred to Spain, and said that if Carreiro sought a remedy for his anguish, it did not lie in a new trial, but in suing his own attorneys for malpractice. The court reporter was, of course, dutifully recording the public testimony and hearing. Carreiro jumped up, screaming and yelling, and was pulled back down into his chair at the defense table by his attorneys. Justice Bradford banged his gavel and threatened to discipline Carreiro. After Arnhelter's closing arguments and those of Carreiro's attorney, the court denied the request for a new trial.

Contractor Steve Rhodes—who is constructing the Carriage House condominium project—said it seemed to him that the ordinance's prohibition against changing the character of a neighborhood was a lot like zoning that neighborhood to remain what it was, whether residential, commercial, industrial, or mixed use.

Summer Burgess, who was on the subcommittee that created the original draft, said it was not that committee's purpose to prevent change, but only to prevent real clashes, such as between an existing residential neighborhood and a planned lanning factory. "We thought about extreme cases," he said.

Developer Barry Saxe—who, along with Avery Angevine, is building the Eden Ridge townhouses—called the draft ordinance an excellent beginning. He made a number of suggestions for wording changes that he said would facilitate cooperation between developers and town boards.

A number of people questioned the draft's language requiring that a developer show that a proposed development would not have an adverse impact on municipal services. Bob Chadbourne said this clause could be used to stop any development since any development would have some adverse impact on services. He suggested inserting the word "unreasonable" impact. Planning Board members were of the opinion that changing the wording would put the burden of proof on the board, to prove that a project's impact would be unreasonable. They preferred the original wording, which seems to put the burden of proof on the developer to show that a project's impact will not be too adverse.

Copies of the draft ordinance are available at the town office, as is a summary of the density requirements for the various sorts of multi-family, commercial and industrial uses covered by the ordinance.

keep our town safe [from over-development]

Marcel Polak said one of the prime tasks of the Planning Board will be to draft a Comprehensive Plan for voters to consider. "The tool of a Comprehensive Plan will manage development and guide development," he said.

The article passed by an overwhelming margin, but not everyone was happy about it. F. Hurd said, "I consider this Planning Board idea to be communism." He said it was communistic for the government to tell people what they could and could not do.

In actuality, the Planning Board was appointed by the selectmen months ago, and the matter was brought to special town meeting only after it appeared that the selectmen had moved too quickly. The article establishing the board contains the clause: "The actions which it [the Planning Board] has taken prior to the adoption of this ordinance are hereby declared to be the acts of the legally constituted Planning Board of the Town of Woodstock." After passing the article, voters unanimously approved appropriating $1,500 for the expenses of the Planning Board.

In other matters, voters overwhelmingly approved an article to have the town plow eight-tenths of a mile of road on Cushman Road that is currently not being plowed in order to keep the road open during the winter. The article was presented by Gary Savage, who plans to build houses along the section of road that is presently not being plowed. Part of the section that is not being plowed is clay and is closed in the spring.

Voters unanimously approved appropriating an additional $250 for officers' bonds. They also unanimously approved the establishment of an account for the assessors and put $10,000 from surplus into it.

The voters were unanimous in accepting a 5-acre parcel of marshland on North Pond from Jeffery Glover. There was no cost involved. Mr. Glover requested it be used to establish a preserve and that the town set up a plaque naming the preserve for a person of his choosing.

Voters added another $5,000 to this year's winter roads account and another $12,000 for summer roads. Additionally, the town will be receiving a total of nearly $42,000 from the state and federal governments to pay for repair of flood-damaged roads.

Voters also added $2,500 to the liability insurance account. This is to buy more insurance to cover liability at the old Woodstock Elementary School, which is being returned to the town by the school district.

The meeting was held in the multipurpose room of the new Woodstock School. Clifford York was elected moderator of the meeting.

THE PROPOSED HIGH VOLTAGE POWERLINE would come through western Maine, including the towns of Upton, Andover, Roxbury and Dixfield.

Area residents show

Local landowner Richard Pelletier was especially angry that surveyors for CMP had gone onto his land while he was away and staked it out for the powerline project. CMP contractors have also painted right-of-way markings on the state roads between Andover and Roxbury, further angering the locals, who point out that no permission has been granted for the project so far. (Permits must be granted by the state Public Utilities Commission to construct the powerline and to import the power. A permit must also be granted by the Federal Energy Regulation Commission. Both agencies are accepting comments and will hold hearings.)

State Sen. Ed Erwin (D-Rumford), along with his wife, State Rep. Phyllis Erwin (D-Rumford), attended both of last week's meetings. Sen. Erwin, who sits on the Senate Utilities Committee, said he wants more information before making up his mind about the merits of the proposal.

So far as the protest organizers were concerned, they already knew enough to know that they didn't want the powerlines changing their landscape and their lifestyle. Steve Kaiser, of No Thank Q Hydro Quebec, said, "Visually, it's just incredibly shocking—it's the spectre of those (140-foot) towers going over where I live." Mr. Kaiser, who lives in Temple, near Wilton, is the economic development planner for Farmington and was one of the organizers of the No Thank Q protest movement.

Another leader of that movement, Conrad Heeschen, of Wilton, said the CMP planners had the sensibility to skirt the most popular tourist areas of Western Maine, but discounted the feelings of others in the region. "They knew about Rangeley and Sugarloaf, but they don't know about the other gems that hold this region (of western Maine) together."

Mr. Heeschen, who is a farmer and a solar energy consultant, said large energy projects are inherently dangerous because if any one is shut down the system loses a large percentage of its power. With smaller projects, the entire network of consumers is not noticeably affected by the shutdown of any one plant.

Mr. Kaiser claimed that, while the communities of western Maine will bear the brunt of whatever visual and environmental effects stem from the powerline, it will be the states of Massachusetts and New York that will be the main beneficiaries of the power, with CMP making a profit on the sale. "This is being imposed on us. There's nothing we did to deserve this project. It's for the benefit of our southern neighbors."

Ben Matulis, of Phillips, one of the organizers of a protest group called Citizens Against Visual Pollution, suggested that local residents contact their state and national legislators and demand a complete environmental impact statement be done before the project is even brought up for hearings.

A number of the speakers pointed out that in states that already have high-voltage powerlines, there are constant medical complaints from people who live in the vicinity of those lines. The complaints range from nosebleeds, headaches and numbness, to charges of higher-than-normal occurrences of leukemia in children and loss of milk production in cows.

Mr. Heeschen pointed out, however, that none of the medical effects have yet been adequately documented. "This project will not be defeated on health effects," he said. "You may have great suspicions, but it's inconclusive."

He said a better way of fighting the project is to challenge CMP's argument that the project is needed. He said CMP has admitted that half the power will be sold out-of-state, and he believes that, in reality, even more than that would be sold out-of-state.

Aside from the local protests and the state and federal fences to be hurdled,

The parade, organized by the Bethel Lions Club, was led by antique cars, which were followed by the American Legion color guard (from Bethel, Locke Mills and Gorham, N.H.) and Princess Mollyockett. The princess this year was Stacey Brown, of West Bethel.

The leaders were followed by Les Mals Choises—a marching unit from Lewiston—and a dozen assorted floats, decorated to the theme of "The American Constitution—the First 200 Years." The crowds were lined up four-deep along Main Street for the parade, which tailed off with local fire engines filled with local boys and girls.

The winners of the float competition, as judged by the Lions, was the float of Cub Scout Pack 566. Hearty Morris' float came in second, and Roberts' Poultry Farm's entry took third place.

While the food and the crafts exhibits were on the Common, a number of popular events were adjacent to that broad lawn. The Ronald McDonald show, sponsored by the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce and provided by the McDonald's Restaurant of South Paris, was held on the lawn in front of The Bethel Inn's convention center.

And on Broad Street, the Bethel Area Health Center sponsored the nurses' bed race. The winner was the speedy crew of the B.E.A.R.S.

The Health Center, with the able help of Peter and Vicki Rackliffe, put on the jumping frog contest again, next to the library, and 75 youngsters brought frogs of all sizes and descriptions to compete. The winner was Nicholas Smith, whose leaper compiled a record 145-inches in three consecutive jumps. Second place was a tie between the frogs of Randy Gross and Danny Harrington, both of which jumped 117 inches in three consecutive jumps. Heidi Kanes' frog took third place, with total leaps of 116½ inches.

Throughout the day there was old-time music from The Old Timers' Band on the bandstand. In the evening The Swamp Rats Four took over, playing bluegrass. The bands were sponsored by the Bethel Lions Club and the Mundt-Allen Legion Post #81. The Lions collected money from the booths on the Common to defray expenses for the music and other activities.

As things quieted down on the Common in the late-afternoon, the fiddlers resined up their bows for the fiddlers' contest, sponsored by the Bethel Lions Club and the Bethel Savings Bank. Winners in the junior division were Kaleb Maranchie (1st) and Amy Chandler (runner-up). In the open division, the results were: 1st Nicole Maranchie, 2nd Gretchen Koehler, 3rd Jodi Maranchie, 4th Joe Robichaud, 5th Tracy Maranchie.

While the crowds had thinned around supper time, they came back strong at night for the fireworks, sponsored by Sunday River Ski Resort and The Bethel Inn. Unfortunately the fireworks coincided with a strong rain shower, which drove away many of the onlookers. But the hearty ones remained until the boisterous end.

Organizers said the crowds were at least as thick as last year—when about 5,000 was the generally accepted estimate.

Kevin McDonald, of Lovell, captured first place in the 10-K race on Mollyockett Day.

the project also faces problems from the provincial agency regulating power in Quebec Province. That agency has said Quebec Hydro will not be allowed to export power unless provincial prices are reduced to match the price that Quebec Hydro has agreed to sell its power to CMP.

A public hearing, with CMP officials explaining the project, will be held in Dixfield July 27. A similar meeting will be held in Andover Aug. 5.

will be before the Planning Board again tonight (Wednesday) regarding their request for a subdivision permit.

The selectmen granted a sewer connection permit to L. E. Davis Lumber Co. for hooking up the toilet in the company's new garage. A permit was also granted to the developers of the Eden Ridge subdivision, who had requested an additional permit for two extra units they plan to build. (They had originally received a permit to hook up 50 units. They then decided to make one of their 6-unit buildings into an 8-unit building, bringing their total units to 52.)

The selectmen were pleased to receive a clean bill of health from the state Department of Environmental Protection regarding the town's landfill. The town last year signed a consent agreement with the DEP to make certain improvements at the landfill as a condition of continued use of the site. The inspector found that the town had complied with the provisions of the October 1986 consent agreement. He noted, however, that more attention has to be paid to covering the household trash area currently being used.

The selectmen voted in favor of using the state's new educational block grant as property tax relief for the town. The Legislature this year appropriated $6.3 million in block grants to municipalities to fund education reform measures. The funds, based on a per-pupil rate of $29.90, are to be used for the purpose of reducing property tax assessments unless the voters of a municipality vote to do otherwise.

According to the Maine Municipal Association, the recipient municipality can use the block grant for property tax relief or can use it for other educational reform measures. Where the municipali-

"Being Powerful While Being Yourself" will be the topic of the first in a series of three Sunday seminars to be presented by the Bethel/NTL Liaison Committee during the coming weeks. Edith and Charles Seashore of NTL will be the featured presenters at the seminar of Sunday, July 28 from 4 to 6 at the Bethel Inn Conference Center on Broad Street in Bethel. The topics for Sunday Seminars on Aug. 2 and 9 will be publicized in the coming weeks. There is no charge for the Sunday seminars and the public is welcome.

Planning committee members for the series included Gweneth Bohr, Cathy Newell, Jaki Wiese, and Charles Seashore. The series is planned to provide local residents and summer visitors the opportunity to take part in an NTL program similar to the daily Sunrise Seminars, but at an hour when more people are able to attend.

ty is part of a school administrative district, all the municipalities in the district would have to commit their block grant monies to the purpose of educational reform.

The MMA reported that the block grant money should become available to the towns beginning in September. For those towns that have already figured their taxes, MMA suggested the block grants be held over until next year. The amount that Bethel—or any of the other SAD #4 towns—will receive has not yet been revealed. However, with about 1,200 students in the district, the towns should have about $36,000 to divided among themselves.

PRINCESS MOLLYOCKETT, Stacey Brown, and members of the American Legion, led the parade up Main Street before a record size crowd.

Nicholas Smith had the jumpingest frog in this year's frog-jumping contest, sponsored by the Bethel Area Health Center and conducted by Peter and Vicki Rackliffe. Nicholas' frog jumped a record 145" in three consecutive leaps. Second place was a tie (at 117") between frogs owned by Randy Gross and Danny Harrington. Heidi Kanes' frog took third, with 116 1/2."

July 18, 1987

THIS LLAMA, with owner Steve Crone, entered the 5-K race and did pretty well considering... considering the fact that the beast is made for endurance, not speed.

Eileen Granahan was the first woman to finish the 5-K race.

THE YOUNGER SET HAD A GOOD TIME running the 1-mile race. Many of the Spanish Youth Exchange visitors participated.

Bob Poirier took first place in the 5-K race.

FOR THESE KIDS on the Sunday River float, the message was clear—children are people, too.

RONALD McDONALD, invited by the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce to take part in the day's activities, was a big hit with the kids.

THE SPANISH YOUTH EXCHANGE STUDENTS, from Mijas, Spain, brought to Bethel by the Bethel Rotary Club, got into the swing of things by decorating a float and riding on it in the parade.

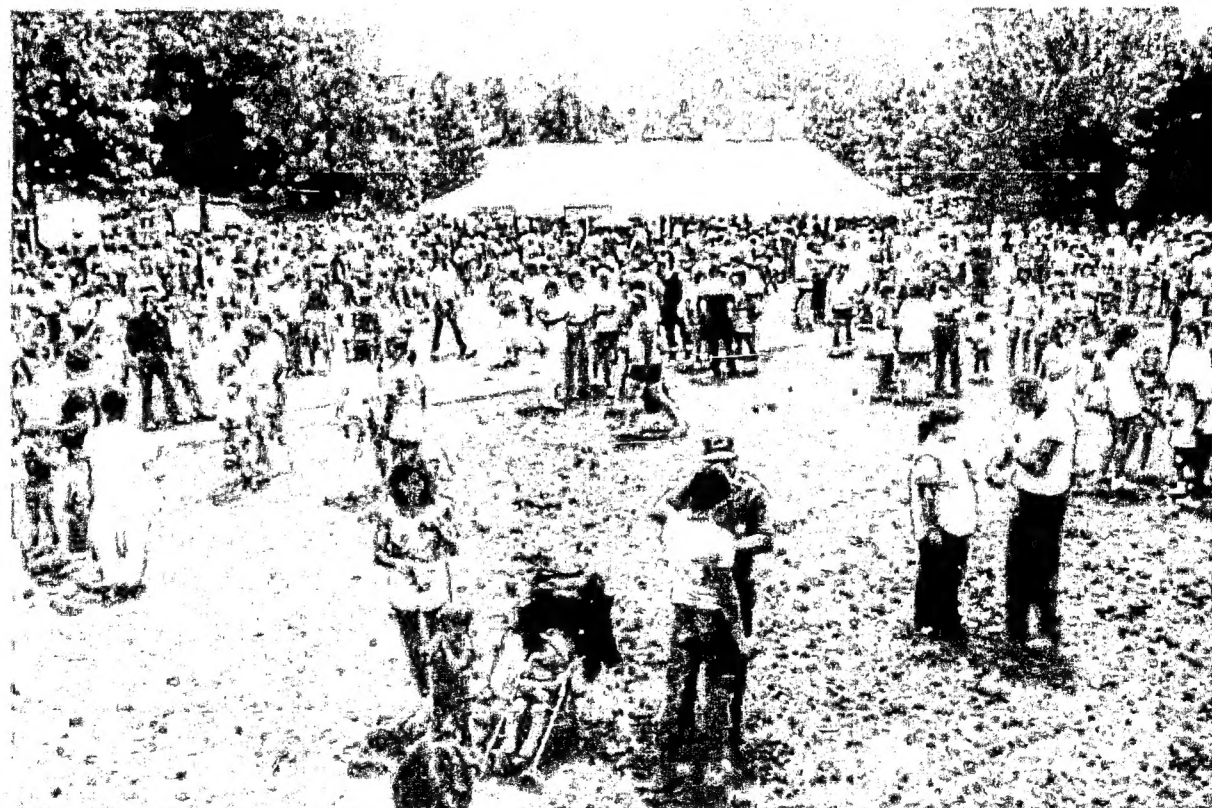

THE TRI-TOWN RESCUE team got off to a fast start in the Nurses' Bed Race down Broad Street, sponsored by the Bethel Area Health Center. The B.E.A.R.S. came out on top in the race, during which each team had to bandage the "patient", take the "patient's" blood pressure, and give the "patient" a sponge bath.

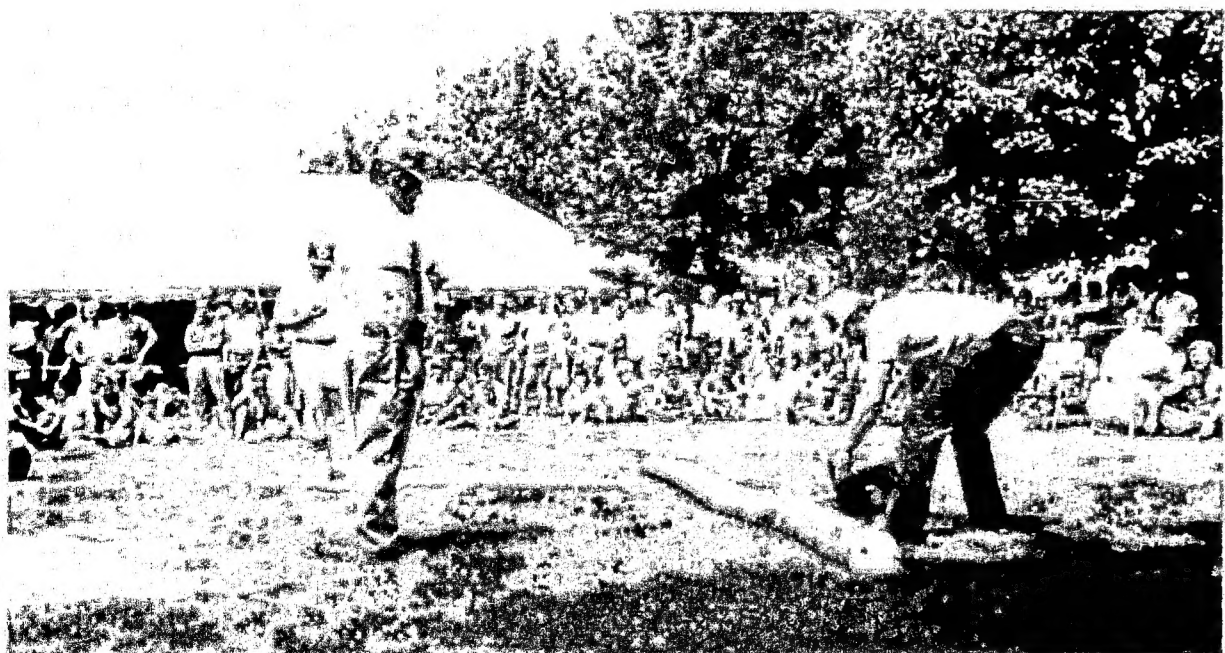

TIMBERRRRI Scott Berry does some delicate last-second cutting to get his tree to fall where he wants it in the Tree Felling event of the Woodsmen's Competition. (The tree was supposed to fall on a stake in the ground.) Judges scored the event on the time it took to fell the tree. But they added one second for each inch away from the stake the tree fell.

THIS YOUNG MAN was trying his hand at the ring toss. The open mouth style of tossing improves the trajectory.

WHILE THE CROWDS WERE THICK, there always seemed to be some room to stop and have a chat.

UNDER THE WATCHFUL EYES OF JUDGES Dave Sysko and Fred Burk, logger Jeff Fleet performs the 12 cuts in the Tree Cut event of the Woodsmen's Competition. He took a first in the event. Coupled with a first in the Pulp Throw (and high marks in most of the other events), Fleet's performance earned him the title (and prize money) of Woodman of the Year.

THE 5-K RUNNERS varied from the serious to the recreational.

Ernest Cassara, of Fairfax, Va., examines a "treasure" at the Rotary Club's tag sale.

Locke Mills

By LORRAINE MILLS

The Greenwood Historical Society's Old Time Dance will be held Saturday, July 25, at 8 p.m. at the town hall. The Ladies Circle summer sale will be Friday, July 24, from 11 a.m.-2:30 p.m. at the Sunday School annex. A luncheon will be served from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. Donations to the food, white elephant and craft tables and cookies for the cookie walk will be gratefully accepted.

The Greenwood Fire Department Auxiliary will meet on Tuesday this month, July 28, at 6:30 p.m. at the fire station.

Mrs. Helen Bacon, Boston, visited Vera Cross Tuesday and Wednesday of last week and Ken and Nellie Swan of Paris Hill were supper guests there on Tuesday.

Frances Davis and Deanna, Upton, and her sister, Carol Hodgkins of Rumford, visited Mrs. John Mills Thursday afternoon.

Members of the Bryant Pond Senior Citizens held a food and craft sale at the Bryant Pond Grange Hall, Thursday. Several members from Locke Mills helped out.

It was mentioned last week that Lora Noyes was honored on her 80th birthday by a open house. Mrs. Noyes tells me that there were out of town guests from Bethel, Lewiston, Waterville, Portland, West Paris, Poland, Rumford and South Paris. Her cake was made by Linda Audye of Lewiston with a pink and white heart cathedral base. She received bouquets from the Hearty Moms Flower Shop. In the evening she received several telephone calls from Virginia, Maryland, Massachusetts, and Illinois and she has received over 80 cards so far. Her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Noyes of Frenchtown, N. J., came and spent the whole week with her.

The Greenwood Historical Society's 1988 calendars are now available from Blaine Mills at the town office.

CARD OF THANKS

I would like to thank all my relatives, neighbors, and friends for their words of encouragement, cards, flowers, and telephone calls during my stay at the hospital, also since my return home.

Many, many thanks.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

All members and friends of the Bethel Historical Society are reminded that the 8th Annual Sudbury Canada Days, the society's summer heritage festival will be held in Aug. 8 and 9. As usual a wide variety of activities are planned for all ages and volunteers to assist with these activities are always needed. Anyone wishing to help should call the society office at 824-2908.

Volunteers continue to be a vital resource of the Bethel Historical Society. Without volunteers many society activities would not be possible or would be seriously curtailed. Two volunteers who have contributed much over the past year are Arlene Lowell and Geraldine Howe. Mrs. Lowell has organized a vertical file of newspaper clippings related to western Maine towns. This is an ongoing project which will always be a source of information for those interested in this section of Maine. Mrs. Howe has done extensive work on the collections of the Bethel Historical Society and is currently working on an index for the Gilead records. Much appreciation is expressed to these volunteers for their untiring efforts in making the society's collections increasingly accessible.

Among the most recent new members of the society are Paula Wight, Cumberland; Alfred Howard, Augusta; Eric and Lucia Schwarz, Locke Mills; Monique Aniel, Rumford; Roy Lord, Winthrop. Welcome!

A genealogy of the Eastman/Murch family has been received from Earl F. Eastman of Mexico; Thomas Wheeler of Bethel has donated several photographs relating to the Bethel area; Irving Farrar, Bethel, has presented the society with a copy of Among the Mighty Mountains of New Hampshire.

The summer meeting of the Oxford County League of Historical Societies will be held on Saturday, July 25, at 2 p.m. in Fryeburg at the fire hall. Special feature of the meeting will be a local art show, featuring art from Fryeburg's past. Anyone interested in attending this meeting is cordially invited to do so.

Newry

By AMY HANSOM

The title of pastor Hanscom's message Sunday morning was "A Christian's Life in Song and Scripture." The annual church picnic and Old Home Sunday will be held at the Newry Community Church Sunday, Aug. 2, beginning with a picnic on the church grounds at 5, followed by a short service and hymn sing in the church. Area churches are invited to attend. Bring your own lunch. Coffee and punch will be furnished. The regular Sunday morning service will be held at 9 a.m. Mr. and Mrs. Verne Glover, Hollis, were at their camp two days last week. Thelma Lowery visited her mother, Ethel Higgins, Massachusetts, a few days the first of the week.

Marge Trout, Georgetown, Mass. was a recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lowery.

Dot Dore is visiting her mother and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Richard Clark. Louise Telley, Gilberte Seeley, Olive Anderson, Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark and Marge Trout were at Oxford Lanes bowling July 14. Dot Dore went as a guest. Louise Telley was high scorer. After bowling the ladies went to lunch.

Tri-Town Rescue

Tri-Town's yard sale was held on the weekend of the 11th and 12th, and was a success, in spite of the fact that the location was changed at the last minute. The weatherman was calling for hot weather, and the barn yard has no shade, so the sale was held in Emery's yard, under the trees. Of course it was overcast all weekend, but the sale went well. Thanks to all those who donated goods, or came by to purchase.

Training this month will be water rescue, held the 22nd at West Sumner. There will be a business meeting following the training, which will be held back at Trap Corner.

Auxiliary has plans well underway for a pancake breakfast, which will be held on Aug. 1 from 7 to 11 a.m. at the Trap Corner barn. And we use the term "pancake" breakfast lightly, because the menu is much more than just pancakes. There will be pancakes, bacon, sausage, eggs, home fries, coffee, orange juice, and toast. Stop in and have breakfast with us, Aug. 1.

Our team of pushers and treaters came in second at the annual bed race at Mollycoddett Day. I hear they were all dressed in their official-looking white shirts, and looked just great, even though it was hot. Team members were: patient, Becky Chandler; pushers and treaters, Ray Seimes, Delwin Wilson 3rd, Merry Howe, and Lillian Herrick. Good job, folks.

Ken Bacon, SAR Team Leader, recently attended a SAR seminar at the Criminal Justice Academy in Waterville. The focus of the seminar was organization and chain of command involved in a search, and was exceptionally well presented. Ken felt he gained a great deal of knowledge.

Tri-Town's annual membership picnic will be held on Sunday, Aug. 9. It will be held at Don Jr. and Kay Mason's house, which is just off Rte. 26, near the Woodstock-West Paris line. If you're a member of one of Tri-Town's groups, please call your leader with your picnic order, asap. The menu will be steaks and lobsters, and Dorene needs to know what to order, soon.

Upton

By ARLINE BERNIER

The Solomon Gays are spending some time in their camp here.

The Tuckers have returned to Dover, Mass., as Phyllis has appointments for radiation treatments. While here, they learned that son Bob had fallen from a garage he is building and broke his arm.

The Leroy Wells and guests returned home to Toledo after spending several days at their home here. They spent some time looking for local history, especially of their house. They were able to show moose and deer to their guests, when they made a round trip through Rangely.

Bill Wood returned to his cemetery lot here after learning he was committing a minor infraction of regulations. Apparently this was ferreted out by someone unable or unwilling to use their efforts on a more worthwhile pursuit. It is gratifying to have a local resident take care of electrical power cost at the church building.

The strawberry season ended as usual rather abruptly. We picked well over 700 quarts of what Phyllis Tucker termed the best berries she ever ate. Phyllis has been eating berries for five decades, more or less, from lots of places including my former gardens.

Watch this paper for advertisements for gift certificates available for the 1988 crop. Evelyn Record spent a few days at her camp recently.

Norwa and I were in Rumford Thursday morning also called on the Mark Lescaults.

Deer permit reminder

Maine deer hunters who don't want to be limited to "bucks only" this fall are reminded that July is the time to apply for a chance at winning a 1987 antler permit.

The Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife plans to issue more than 35,000 permits this year, entitling the holders to take either buck or doe deer.

Application forms are available from town offices, license agents, deer tagging stations, and offices of the Fish and Wildlife Department.

Completed applications must be submitted to the department by Aug. 3. Winners will be selected in a computer drawing in September.

This is your Chamber of Commerce

Each week, this column will spotlight a different member of the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce. The purpose is to give some understanding about the various fields of endeavor of the Chamber members.

L.E. Davis Lumber Company Inc., a member of the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce, is a corporation in its third generation of family ownership. The first mill was built in 1927 by Leslie E. Davis, grandfather of the present owner, Danny Davis, who purchased the mill from his father, Richard Davis, in 1981. The business, located at the intersection of Route 26 and Cross Street on the banks of the Androscoggin River in Bethel, produces long lumber from Eastern white pine, and is a wholesale concern, selling to brokers and retail yards.

Describing his business goal as "keeping up with the times," Davis has experienced considerable changes within his 14 to 16 member workforce, due to recent retirements, including that of Lee Hutchins, who retired in March after 48 years with the company. Davis feels fortunate to have worked with many of the members of the original crew. The mill buildings include a brand-new maintenance garage which is just being completed by the mill crew. This is quite a change from the earliest days of the business when the mill was relocated every fall and spring in close proximity to the available wood.

The successive owners of L.E. Davis Lumber Company have been conscientious members of the Bethel community, serving as town officials and members of many organizations, and being closely associated with the development and growth of the Bethel Airport.

CLASS OF '34 HAS DINNER

On Molly Ockett Day eight classmates of the Class of 1934 from Gould Academy met at Mother's for lunch. Peggy Frazer Webber, from Denver, Colo., who had not been here for 36 years, joined with Ruth Bean, of So. Paris, Ruby Ring, Ruth Haskell, Barbara Hathaway, from Bryant Pond, Mary Tripp, Sunday River, Norma Jodrey and Harlan Hutchins, Bethel. The group enjoyed talking over old times.

Maine deer survived harsh winter

A mild December and April tempered a stressful Maine mid-winter and helped reduce deer losses throughout the state. That's the conclusion of the 1986-87 Deer Winter Severity Index Report from Wildlife Biologist Gerald Lavigne, deer study leader for the Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife.

In the report, Lavigne notes that survival of deer in winter is dependent on their mobility. "Deep, unsupportive snow inhibits deer mobility and may prevent the animal from taking in enough browse to sustain itself. Low air temperatures and wind create a further demand on the deer since it must generate more heat to maintain normal body temperatures."

The report is based on data collected from 28 deer wintering areas state-wide. Weekly measurements of snow depth and snow profile characteristics, as well as deer sinking depths, were taken in open softwood cover by wildlife biologists, wardens, and other volunteer cooperators.

Winter severity indexes (WSIs) are developed from the data and values are assigned, ranging from zero to well over 100. The higher the WSI value, the more severe the winter.

According to Lavigne, generally, WSI values below 60 denote mild wintering conditions; values between 60 and 85 denote moderate; while those above 85 indicate increasingly severe wintering conditions for deer. High deer losses are associated with high WSI values.

The WSI values this past winter ranged from a high of 93 (compared to a long-term average of 85) for northeastern Maine, to 64 (54) for extreme southwestern Maine. The statewide WSI value for the winter was 77 compared with the long-term (1972-86) average of 67.

Lavigne notes that: "Winter got off to a bad start in the third week of November, as 12 to 24 inches of snow blanketed the state. This snow fall sent the deer to their wintering areas earlier than usual. Although snow melted and settled in southern Maine allowing deer wide, if crusty, mobility, northern deer remained near wintering areas from late November on."

"The month of December was notably mild for deer in southern areas as snow accumulation remained below long-term (1973-85) means and temperatures edged somewhat higher. In the north, snow cover remained high enough to impede deer mobility and encouraged some use of winter shelter during the entire month."

January was the toughest month, according to Lavigne, as it "proved very severe for deer in every corner of the state, as a series of five or six coastal storms covered the state with two to four feet of snow at month's end, when deer mobility was highly restricted to the best available shelter from Kittery to Fort Kent."

Monthly WSI values for January, ranging from 88 in the south to 134 up north, reflect the severe wintering conditions for deer. On the positive side, temperatures generally remained near long-term means, with few of the prolonged cold snaps with high winds that sometimes occur in January.

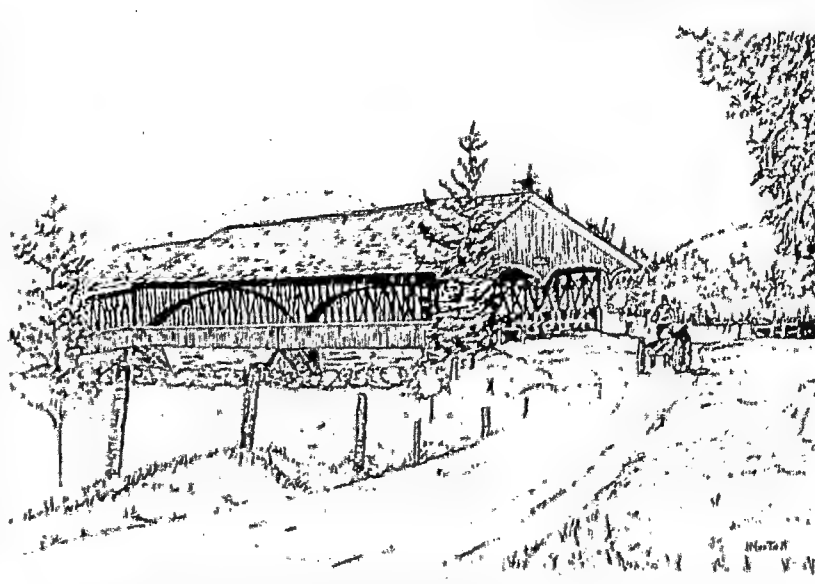

As for February, Lavigne observes: "In contrast, it proved to be as dry as January had been snowy. Little snow and almost no precipitation occurred anywhere in the state during February. This proved beneficial, as deer were able to create and readily maintain a very extensive trail system in deep snow that remained powdery all month. Nevertheless, deer did remain restricted to trails in most locations."

"During March, above-average snow depths and sinking depths persisted with minor settling and some spring crusting until the final week of the month. At that time very warm temperatures and heavy rainfall melted snowpacks ranging from 1.5 to nearly 3 feet in a week's time in all parts of the state. Deer mobility suddenly became restricted."

"Overall, wintering conditions during March must be rated as severe in most areas of the state. Mortality to coyotes and dogs seemed to intensify during March; malnutrition problems were also beginning to show up, especially among fawns."

Lavigne concludes that: "What little snow remained after April 1 soon melted and was carried off in flood water. Bare ground, above-average temperatures and early green-up combined to produce very mild conditions for the final month of the 1986-87 winter."

I know that I'm getting old now. I forgot that today was the day I was supposed to type my column and send it in. Maybe that foggy, humid weather affected my brain! It was enough to affect something, all right. I can sympathize with those who had trouble breathing as I did, also. Hope we don't see any more spells like that, again.

It has been a busy week. Last Thursday, Peggy and I headed for Farmington, bright and early as I had an appointment with the rheumatologist at 9:30. It takes about an hour and a half to get there and we like to allow for anything happening along the way. Got there in plenty of time and had quite a wait before seeing the doctor. After I got out of the office, we headed out to find Peggy's granddaughter, Pamela Taylor. Peggy had directions and we found her without much trouble. Visited there for a short spell and then came home.

We had thought out friend's funeral might be that day but didn't know, and as we wanted to attend, we came home to find out by the paper when it was to be held. As it wasn't that day, we decided to begin getting beet greens ready for freezing. I scurried around and got containers washed, cleared some space in the freezer and got water on heating to blanch them in. Joe and Peggy went to the garden with the wheel barrow and pulled a double row of greens, brought them to the front yard and after getting them filled with water, washed and rinsed them ready for me to care for in the house. They did the outside work and I did the inside work and put up 25 quarts of greens that afternoon. In the evening, Russell, Peggy and I went to the funeral home for visiting hours for our friend. Didn't stay too long but did want to pay our respects as she was a lovely lady, and we all liked her so much. It was a hot and humid day and we felt very sticky after working on greens so long.

Friday, Russell worked on a project he had started in the morning and in the afternoon had an appointment with his doctor. While he was there, Peggy and I went to the Thrift Shop to see if we could find cloth for a skirt we want to put on for the Variety Show on Aug. 13 at Bryant Pond.

Wyona came up late in the afternoon to get a mattress to use as Michael's father was coming for the weekend. It was showering around but didn't give us very hard thunder showers. However, it looked as though some were getting bad showers from the lightning that I could see from the windows.

Around seven in the evening, Peggy, Russell and I went next door to David and Caroline Yates' home for a birthday party for Lawrence Yates. Instead of the usual birthday cake, gingerbread and whipped cream was served. Everyone seemed to enjoy it immensely and especially Elizabeth, Lawrence's great granddaughter. She is about nine months old and didn't care whether she had food spooned on a spoon or whether she had to without it as long as she got the food. She is a real cutie and sure did love the gingerbread and whipped cream.

There were more beet greens that needed taking care of so decided to do it Saturday morning before it got too hot. It was muggy and humid but not as hot as the day before so we went at them. Put up another 12 quarts, six smaller size and canned eight pints so guess we should be able to have a few beet greens this winter. That cloth that Russell sent for sure did the trick and we got the greens instead of the leaf miners getting them.

Peggy went dancing Saturday night with some friends. They go to Greene and have a grand old time doing the dancing with old time music. The good kind.

Sunday, Wyona called to see if we were going to be home and as we were the family came up and had dinner with us and then we looked at all the lovely pictures they took while in Colorado. What a beautiful country side and would I love to see it!

Peggy went to visit some friends on Paris Hill during the afternoon. The Somers, I believe. Friends of the lady she was with in Massachusetts.

Went to the doctor in North Bridgton on Monday to get treatment as usual. Had other troubles develop too which he is following up on. Peggy was here in the evening and we were talking over the Grange program she is in charge of and also the variety show when our niece, Hilda Taylor, came in with Avon Goodies. She visited with us a while and we had a good look at her books.

The weather was still hot and humid and foggy mornings have been the rule of the week.

Russell had set out some cauliflower plants on Monday and still had more that he set out on Tuesday. Being so hot and humid and as I felt tired, I didn't do much but did keep busy.

What a relief it was to have the weather change! I bet everyone felt as we did and was glad to have the air clear so one could breathe with ease and feel the cool breeze again. It was just wonderful. I did a wash on Wednesday and Peggy had done one the night before which was still hanging on the line. Didn't take long for it to dry. Lawns got mowed and grass and weeds trimmed. Made the place look good again. Russell worked in the garden what he could and last evening, Wednesday, Peggy, Russell and I went to Carl and Lettie Brooks to join them in going to Bryant Pond for a rehearsal of the skit that we are planning for the variety show. A photographer from the Norway paper came to take some pictures to advertise. We will have to have another rehearsal before the show but it looks like there would be a good variety of acts for all to enjoy so mark the date on your calendar.

Peggy and I went to Lewiston today, Thursday, and while there went to visit friends as well as for an appointment I had to keep. We also went to visit my daughter and had supper with her and the girls. So you can see what a busy time we have all had. There seems to be no end of things to do. Forgot that we put up our first peas yesterday, also. Cooked a few to eat and froze the rest. Hope there will be more the next time.

Being so busy I haven't missed the regular shows on TV much and didn't have time to listen to too much of the hearings that were going on. I do hope they get things ironed out soon and get things back to normal. Take care one and all and have a good week. Lots coming up for folks to go to and think about.

Morey attends fitness specialist course

Pat Morey, instructor of SAD #4 Adult and Community Education's popular exercise course, participated in a week-long seminar for fitness professionals last week in Farmington. The course was taught by representatives of the highly acclaimed "Dr. Kenneth" Cooper Institute for Aerobics Research from Dallas, Texas, and sponsored by the University of Maine at Farmington. Forty-nine professionals from all over New England and as far away as Iowa were in attendance. A wide variety of fitness professions was represented, from state police trainers to local television show "Exercise" leader.

Morey's schedule was demanding, with classes beginning at 7:00 or 7:30 each morning and lectures running until 5:00 in the evening. Topics emphasized were fitness assessment and exercise prescription. Participants took practical and written examinations at week's end. Morey was enthusiastic about the conference. "I intend to incorporate much of what I learned into our local exercise program," she said. She hopes to offer fitness assessment testing, including body composition, on a voluntary basis to interested class members. She also wants to initiate calisthenic and weight training circuits for variety in class routines.

SAD #4 Adult and Community Education Director Cathy Newell was pleased to provide partial tuition support for the seminar. "I believe in helping our instructors improve their qualifications, especially in this new and changing field," Newell said. Morey has led the exercise class since its inception in March of 1985, and attends one to two fitness-related workshops each year.

An exercise class is currently ongoing, at the Telstar Regional High School gym, from 6:30 to 7:30 on Monday and Thursday evenings. (The class will expand to three evenings per week beginning in September.) Class fee is typically $10 for eight weeks or $1.25 per session if on a walk-in basis. New faces (and bodies) are always welcome.

NTL population currently about 200

Last weekend brought a new influx of participants and staff for NTL Institute programs on the topics of human interaction, advanced team building, integrating training and consultation, developing the organizational and personal self, and managing conflict. These new arrivals joined others already in Bethel for two programs that started last week, bringing the total NTL population to approximately 200 persons.

The most unusual of the NTL programs this week is called Training/Consultation Skills for International Human Resource Development Specialists. The participants in this program are either leaders on Third World organizations involved in national development, or U.S. trainers who provide training assistance to Third World organizations.

The countries represented in all of the current programs include persons from Sudan, Bahrain, India, England, Austria, Jamaica, Cape Verde Islands, and Hungary, as well as the usual representation from Canada. Attendees also come from many of the 50 states.

Sunrise Seminars already held this week have included presentations from staffers David Callahan and Fred Miller with Ava Schindler. Still on the schedule this week are the following: Thursday, July 23, Eva Schindler-Raiman on "Leadership in Profile: A Microintervention in Macro Systems"; Friday, July 24, a discussion about the Changing Bethel Community by people from Bethel with an NTL staffer; and Saturday, July 25, Norma Jean Anderson on "A Model for Upward Mobility of Women in Corporations."

The Sunrise Seminars, starting at 7:30 a.m. in the Maine Room at the NTL Conference Center complex at the top of Broad Street, are open to all interested persons from the Bethel community.

U.S. Ski Team to train at Sunday River skiway

Sunday River Ski Resort has been named an official training center for the U.S. Ski Team for the second consecutive year. Sunday River is one of six ski resorts nationwide to be designated an official training site.

This season the training should prove to be very competitive as team members will be vying for spots on the U.S. Olympic Ski Team participating at the Calgary games in February 1988. The ski team plans to train at Sunday River Nov. 25-Dec. 5. A pre-Olympic training camp is tentatively scheduled for Jan. 25-31.

Local people are being asked to support the training of the ski team, and a plaque stands at the entrance to South Ridge Centre recognizing those individuals and businesses whose contributions and donations make the U.S. Ski Team's stay in the Bethel area possible.

12th annual Arts and Artisans Fair at Lovell Saturday, Aug. 15

For the 12th consecutive year the annual Arts and Artisans Fair for the benefit of the Charlotte E. Hobbs Memorial Library will take place in Lovell on Saturday, Aug. 15, at the New Suncook School on Route 5 from 10-4, rain or shine. This high quality all-juried fair features up to 50 exhibitors many of whom have received awards for their work. No admission charge. Outstanding offerings include fine hand weaving, hand knitting, and handspun yarn; pottery including Raku, paintings and prints, leather work, hand-wrought iron work, woodcarvings and folk art, exceptional handmade baskets, distinctive jewelry of precious metals, gemstones or enamels; fine needlework, lanterns or shades, dried wreaths, unusual dolls, and animals and pewter. The fair proudly welcomes back Ken Kantror, master-pewterer, with pieces of his design, after an absence of several years. A resident of Lovell in 1978 he was one of the original exhibitors who helped the library launch the fair.

Drawings for representative articles by exhibitors will be held during the day. Raffle tickets can be purchased from Lovell Library Club members or at the library in advance, or during the day at the fair. Light refreshments, sandwiches, and beverages will be available. A sale of used books is held concurrently at the library building. For information, phone (207) 925-3177, Monday, 9-9 p.m., Tuesday-Saturday, 10-3.

The Lovell Historical Society will again present a display of early area items at the school during the fair with society members in answer inquiries about unusual articles.

A public chicken barbecue supper will be served by the Lovell Volunteer Fire Company after the fair, at the Center Lovell Church also on Route 5, a few miles north.

B.E.A.R.S.

Bethel Emergency Ambulance and Rescue Service
The B.E.A.R.S. would like to thank all those who helped us with Mollycodd Day.

The winning B.E.A.R.S. team in the bed race was: patient, Lisa Crowell, and other participants were Wilma Tuttle, Bucky Buckman, Tom Buckman and Arlene Greenleaf.

There were a few minor injuries on the Common but no major injuries. A bandage or a band-aid was applied and the patient sent on his or her way to enjoy more of the day.

Water Rescue has been planned for Sunday, Aug. 16, at the John Greenleaf camp on Songo Pond.

Things are quiet now with the B.E.A.R.S. Classes will start again in September. Please let someone on the ambulance know if you are interested in taking a class; what one, and when you would like to take it.

Safety Tip

Be careful what kind of berries you or someone else is eating. There are some that are very poisonous. If you don't know what it is don't eat it.

Notes from the Woodstock Historical Society

Here is a comment on the famed Shakespeare—

"Against a background of old and new, tradition and change, Shakespeare appeared. He is associated with the lively changes in our language, though on the whole he was a traditionalist in thought. His chief power was his wide human sympathy with all the multiform types of life round him in the crowded and intense society of the Elizabethan world." —Robert Gittings

Annie Crockett donated some items from Robert Crockett's childhood, including a silver cup given him by the doctor who delivered him.

A group from the Conservation Camp recently visited the museum. Hope they enjoyed their tour.

Thanks to all those who have helped to watch the museum.

Talsto Koskela and Company presented our last program. It is always nice to learn about another culture—in this case Finland and America's Finnish heritage. Slides, lecture, and dances spelled a good program.

The society has order more telephone books.

We plan a food sale soon — Eva B. Twitchell is chairman.

The society is printing up a limited supply of booklets on Woodstock by Curator Larry Billings.

Final performances at Upson Playhouse this coming weekend

On Saturday and Sunday, July 25-26, the final Children's Tent Theater performances of The Upson Playhouse's 1987 summer season will be Mother Nature! Mother Goose! presented Saturday at 10 a.m. and Sunday at 3 p.m. The July 25-26 weekend will also close the Upson Playhouse's Picnic Play season with a premier performance of Persimmon—A Garden Play, which will be presented Saturday at 1 p.m. and Sunday at 12:30 p.m.

Encouraged by the four Upson Players using music, poetry, improvisation and pantomime, children from the Tent Theater audience are invited to participate on stage with the actors and to act out their own ideas as the story unfolds. Mother Nature! Mother Goose! brings nursery rhymes and live animals to the stage beneath the great tent. Many surprising things happen as they meet the children each day.

Persimmon—A Garden Play is a collection of poems by Chinese women, arranged by Artistic Director Pamela Bailey Powers to tell a story of love, obsession betrayal and fulfillment. This is a production which uses the techniques of Kubuki, Peking Opera and Noh theater, with masks, music, lovely bowls of flowers and fruit to complete the setting.

Picnic Play audiences are invited to enjoy the beautiful setting of the historic Hammons House where the Upson Playhouse is located at 1:00 on Saturday and 12:30 on Sunday before curtain time which will be about one half hour later. Children's Tent Theater tickets are $2.50 each. Picnic Play tickets are $5 each.

All shows are held rain or shine. Information and ticket reservations are available from Edelweiss Country Store, Bethel, or from The Hammons House on Broad Street, Bethel, 824-3170.

The Upson Playhouse received partial funding from the Mahosuc/Gould Arts Council and the Maine Arts Commission through LPL Plus APL.

The Upson Playhouse wishes to express its appreciation to Bonnema Pottery for the loan of props for Miss Julie and to the Bonnemas for their sponsorship of tickets for Children's Tent Theater.

Spanish visitors
enjoying Maine life

Although many of them don't speak any English, all of the Spanish students on the Rotary-sponsored youth exchange visit to Bethel the past two weeks seem to be having a good time.

Staying with host families in the area, the 20 Spanish youngsters—12 boys and eight girls between the ages of 12 and 14—have been kept busy since they arrived July 11. (They leave this Saturday.) By all accounts, the best activity so far was climbing Mt. Abram and then having a cookout and night under the stars at Ray Harrington's Scouting area. According to the chaperones, the Spanish youngsters particularly enjoyed that day because they had never been in a forest, and camping out gave them a chance to get to know their American counterparts. (The families they're staying with all have children of similar ages.)

Aside from the hike up Mt. Abram and the camping out, the Spanish youngsters have visited farms and mills, gem quarries and schools, and yesterday they got a ride on one of Sunday River Ski Resort's chairlifts. They also decorated the Rotary Club float in the Jollyrocket Day parade, and then got to ride on the float in the parade. Tuesday they were guests of Rotary at the weekly breakfast meeting at Martha's Restaurant.

Bethel and the surrounding communities are a far cry from the town of Mijas, along the Spanish coast. For one thing, Mijas has 46,000 people. For another, 26,000 of the residents are foreigners—and 90 percent of them are British.

In fact, it was because of two foreign tourists that the Spanish Youth Exchange came into being. Bob and Dottie Greaney, of Andover, were visiting in Mijas and came up with the idea of a youth exchange. With the help of officials of that town and the Bethel Rotary Club, the exchange came to fruition.

First, the Foreign Department of the Mijas municipal government set up a selection process for choosing the youngsters to make the trip. (Because most of the residents of the city are foreigners, it is necessary to have a Foreign Department to assist them with such things as knowing how to pay their taxes and getting their utilities turned on or off.)

The Foreign Department advertised the trip and set up readings on Maine for those youngsters who were interested. The Foreign Department then tested the applicants on their knowledge of Maine and of Bethel—such as, what is the meaning of the biblical name Beth-El.

The 80 finalists also had to write essays on why they wanted to make the trip to Bethel. Finally, with the help of the Social Services Department of the municipal government, the officials selected from the most-qualified youngsters those who came from the least advantaged homes. Officials also tried to ensure that no family had more than one youngster on the trip. When the 20 travelers finally were selected, the municipal government purchased their plane tickets for them—from the provincial capital, to Madrid, and then on to Montreal. The Bethel Rotary Club and the host families have picked up all expenses from there on.

The exchange will continue next year, when youngsters from the Bethel area will be sent to Mijas. Selection procedures will be announced later by the Rotary Club.

The selection will be going over the new list of valuations during the next few weeks, checking it for errors, and will then set the tax rate.

Newry's valuation
jumps by over 100%

The valuation of taxable property in the Town of Newry more than doubled from last year to this year—from $2,184,887 to $4,527,430.

Selectmen and Assessor Roger Hanson said part of the increase is due to the continued expansion of condos, chalets, lodges, etc. at Sunday River Ski Resort. The remainder of the increase is due to the revaluation of properties done by the assessors over the past year, Mr. Hanson said.

The selectmen will be going over the new list of valuations during the next few weeks, checking it for errors, and will then set the tax rate.
